* The state of the An Examination of the Probate Court records in several of the largest cities of the country has revealed the melancholy fact that many hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of property, securities and funds belonging to estates, and which have been placed in the hands of so-called "confidentials" or family advisors as executors and trustees, have been lost through needless litigation, incompetent management or defalcation.

We truly wish every reader of The Times-Dispatch would give serious consideration to this

If they did, they would believe what we are continually hammering in this space, to wit: That the VIRGINIA TRUST COMPANY, which makes a specialty of this business, makes a safer, more economical and more satisfactory Executor and Trustee than an individual.
